SUPERVISOR COMMENTS

Today was a busy day, with officers responding to various types of calls for service. Of specific note was a restraining order violation that stemmed from an arrest 2 days ago.

A subject was arrested for stalking, booked into the jail, and served with a emergency restraining order. Earlier today, the subject violated the restraining order by trying to contact his ex-girlfriend, while he was still in jail. An officer contacted him at the jail, and arrested him for the violation. A few hours later, the ex-girlfriend contacted TPD to report he was still trying to call her. An officer went to the jail again, rearrested him on a new restraining order violation, and obtained a bail enhancement, due to his continuous violations.
